Financial Highlights for Fiscal Year Ending March 2026

Quarterly trend

Lower revenue and profits in 4Q compared to the 3Q results. Trading volume declined, particularly in foreign stocks, as U.S. stock prices weakened in February and the Japanese and U.S. stock markets, as well as the foreign exchange market, became volatile amid escalating geopolitical risks in March.

Key points of the 4Q performance:

- 1) Increase in brokerage commission on domestic stocks
- 2) The accumulation of recurring revenue
—in addition to investment trust fees, margin transaction balances and interest on loans secured by securities continued to expand.
- 3) An impairment loss on software of a digital subsidiary was recognized—in light of our future business outlook, we have taken a conservative approach to recognizing losses.

《 Tokai Tokyo Securities 》 Investment Trust (Sales, Sales Commissions and Trust Fees) ①

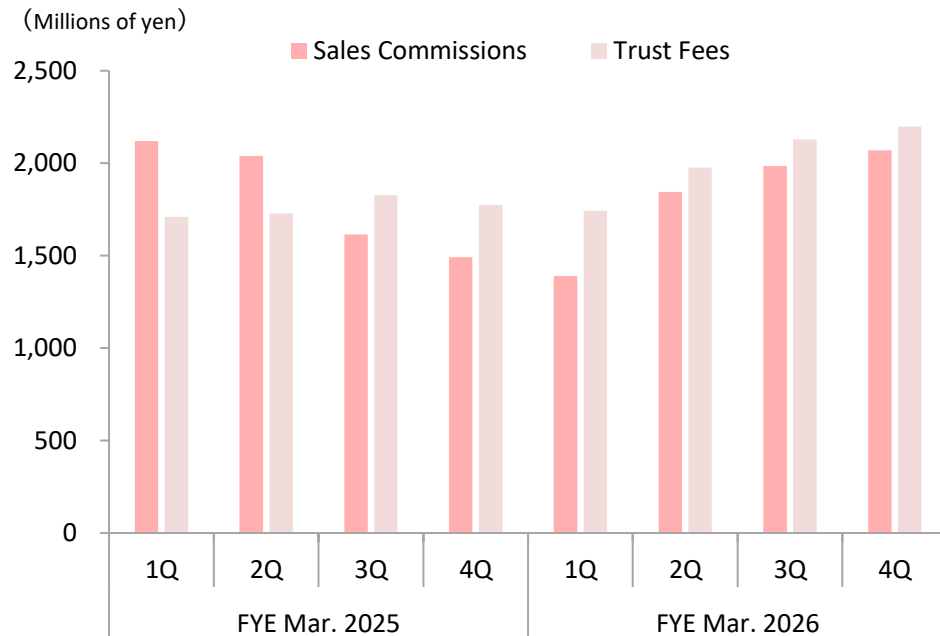

Investment Trust

- Sales of publicly offered investment trusts were sluggish in 1Q, partly due to the sharp decline in Japanese and U.S. stock prices in April. From 2Q onward, however, stock prices in both markets entered an upward trend, leading to a recovery in investor sentiment.
- As a result, sales of publicly offered investment trusts have recovered, with both sales volume and sales commissions increasing QoQ and YoY.
- Furthermore, investment trust fees increased QoQ and YoY due to higher sales volume and growth of assets under management, driven by rising investment trust prices.
